Behaviour Support Services

Promoting independence and community inclusion for adults

Our person-centered support services for adults who live with autism or developmental disabilities are designed to involve the individual and his or her community of care. Our work is guided by their values and culture, which we integrate with evidence-based knowledge to address specific goals that will foster greater home and community inclusion.

We support adults:

- to learn functional skills
- to develop greater independence
- to decrease challenging behaviour by replacing it with alternative, adaptive behaviour; and
- improve quality of life.

Our service delivery model

We deliver our services in line with the key components of positive behaviour support and embrace the values that guide the process. We defend and value the social role of all citizens and believe in inclusion, participation and contribution to community. It is within this context, that the prevention and reduction of socially challenging behaviour is possible and the quality of life of those whom we serve improves.

Our Commitment

We engage the individual's support team in the assessment and plan development process, which is empirically grounded and based on the science of applied behaviour analysis (ABA). Our consultants work collaboratively with all team members and are sensitive to the difference in experience and background of each member. We facilitate a well-guided and supportive service delivery process that creates opportunities for skill building and increasing knowledge.

Getting Started

Self-Referral/Private Contracts

A family or service provider could choose to access behaviour consultation services privately. Please contact our Team Leader for details at 778-945-1435 or 1-855-437-7095.

Government Funded Services

Requests for adult services are managed by a Facilitator with Community Living BC. There is no charge for our government-funded services.

Laurel Behaviour Support Services is offered by posAbilities a not-for-profit community living organization.
